Steve Jobs and Legacy

What price success? This is the question that emerges from my reading of Walter Isaacson's excellent biography of Steve Jobs, the co-founder of Apple and one of the most influential entrepreneurs of the modern technological age. In this summer edition of The Rabbi's Nightstand, I want to reflect on the question of the relationship between success and legacy. That is to say, how do we wish to be remembered? What is more important—what we gave people, or how we treated them?

At the USCJ centennial convention in the fall of 2013, Dr. Erica Brown, the acclaimed Jewish educator and author, gave a keynote address based on the book. She identified themes that could be applied to successful leadership in the Jewish community. I recall her celebrating the emphasis Jobs placed on Apple being an integrated company, in which departments cooperated with a common vision so as to create "insanely good" products. (Clearly, her message was aimed at the Conservative movement, which has been

Cantor Sol Zim

Just want to share with you some Zim comings and goings this summer...Three of my grandsons (Jonathan, Jordan & Jared – Craig's kids) just returned from a back-packing trip to Europe. They enjoyed visiting several countries but their main focus was to step foot on the grounds of Auschwitz-Birkenau, where so many Jews were murdered by the hands of the Nazis, and to pay tribute to their memory. All three boys said Kaddish together and were incredibly emotional as they tried to digest the horrors that occurred on the earth where they were standing. At the same time, they also made it their mission to visit many synagogues across Europe to show their support to the Jewish community and to stand as a symbol to those who tried to destroy the Jewish people that we are survivors and our Synagogues are still vibrant and a part of European society. When the boys came back from their trip, you could see on their faces how immensely touched they were by what they had seen and observed.

My grandson, Ryan (one of Eric's sons), just left to Israel on a Birthright trip. If they would only extend the allowed age, I'd love to join them. When one of my grandsons tells me they are going to Israel, I start exploring and thinking about all the amazing and impressive achievements that they have accomplished in a mere 67 years. So young and so small, yet so accomplished. What a remarkable nation our beloved State of Israel is.

Israeli society is special and unique, both from a humanistic perspective as well as a pioneering perspective. Surrounded by conflict, violence & terrorism, the story of the Israeli people is one of resilience, innovation, family & their roots. A country, born in the middle of the desert, with very limited natural resources, and with countless enemies surrounding her... yet, despite the extraordinary challenges and risks, Israel's creativity, ingenuity and resourcefulness have made her one of the most developed and advanced countries in the world today. Israel is not only productive for her own benefit but through all of her innovative advancements, in the fields of science, technology, medicine & environment, she is able to help make the world a better place by sharing her achievements.

The Chutzpah we may observe in Israeli's is not really 'nerve' or 'audacity'. It is actually what gives them the inner strength to challenge and not to take "no" for an answer when the world around them is criticizing them. Israeli's believe they can accomplish things that are consid-notorious for its various arms' inability to row in the same direction). And she put significant emphasis on raising the bar of expectation on product. One of my favorite passages in the book is Jobs' response to a reporter's question on the day the Macintosh was unveiled about what market research he had done. Jobs retorted, "Did Alexander Graham Bell do any market research before he invented the telephone?" It's reminiscent of Henry Ford's comment about his invention: "If I had asked customers what they wanted, they would have said, 'A faster horse.'" In other words, Dr. Brown was telling a room full of Jewish leaders that we don't ask our communities what they want as much as we show them what they should want. Jobs had that extraordinary imagination, and it led to great success.

Needless to say, though, there were many elements to Jobs' personality and legacy that are not remotely admirable. He fathered and essentially abandoned a child and her mother. He manipulated people in his personal and professional lives. He would dismiss his staff's new ideas, only to present those same ideas days later as his own. He parked in the handicapped parking space, and ignored speed limits. It was as if the rules of society didn't apply to him. Those who knew him called it his "reality distortion field." On the one hand, it pushed the talent at Apple to do what they had previously thought was beyond their capacity. On the other hand, it made him a very difficult person to tolerate.

Jobs became insanely wealthy very quickly, and when he returned to Apple, he drew an annual salary of $1. We say that a person isn't judged by how much money he/she makes, so to his credit, it wasn't about the money. But we also say a person is indeed judged by how much money he/she gives away. Say what you will about Microsoft being nothing more than an Apple rip-off, but while we know about the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Jobs wasn't very philanthropic.

There are lessons in leadership to be learned from emulating Steve Jobs. There are ethical lessons to be learned from avoiding emulating him at all costs—perhaps as we draw wisdom from the deeds of our patriarchs and matriarchs in the Torah's earliest narratives. So what is the legacy of Steve Jobs? Ultimately, it's little different than our own. It's complex. It's conflicted. Jobs saw the world in binary terms—a product was either excellent or garbage; food was either perfect or inedible. People were either heroes or incompetent (a paraphrase for family readership, of course), sometimes both on the same day. But in reality, life—and the story of his life—isn't so binary. It consists of far more gray than black and white.

Ohr Chadash News

Ohr Chadash Overview By Morah Shari Zuber

Parents, grandparents, and loved ones were beaming with pride. Teachers were aglow from their students' academic accomplishments over the past year. Even the weather cooperated with a beautiful sun-bathed morning. All the components were in perfect alignment for Ohr Chadash's closing assembly on Sunday, June 7, 2015.

While family members gathered in the sanctuary for the beginning of the proceedings, Morah Janet conducted a last-minute rehearsal for the Sunday-only classes' performance, as well as the one for the Aleph through Hey classes. Upon the conclusion of the run through, the families gathered in Hillcrest Jewish Center's Moreida Room for the commencement of the program.

Education Director Ruth Merrill warmly welcomed those in attendance to the festivities and expressed appreciation for the exceptional turnout. Rabbi Manes Kogan of Hillcrest Jewish Center extended his blessings to the assemblage and his joy at Ohr Chadash's presence at his synagogue for the spring semester. Rabbi Robyn Fryer Bodzin of Israel Center of Conservative Judaism expressed her happiness and anticipation that the school will once again return to ICCJ next spring. Daughter Ariella cooed her approval of her mother's request for each child to read a Jewish-themed book over the summer and provide her with a critique.

Ruth Merrill acknowledged several luminaries of the Ohr Chadash School Board, including board secretary, Arlene Ratzabi, and board chairperson, Phyllis Laine, who spoke of the successes of this school year. Morah Ruth also expressed the school's and her personal appreciation to Michael Zuckerman, a graduate of Ohr Chadash, and the school's unofficial/official photographer, for his years of dedication in capturing school events on celluloid for posterity. Michael is leaving us for collegiate aspirations and we all wish him well in his academic endeavors. We also are appreciative of his parents' bringing him whenever we called upon him.

Morah Janet's adept keyboard and her faithful companion Jack's syncopated tail provided the musical congruity needed as The Star Spangled Banner and Hatikvah were sung by all. The Gan-Kitan, Shorashim, and Mechina classes next took center stage, and with the support of their morot, Emily, Sara, and Shari, favored those pre-

Sisterhood

The relaxing days of summer are now here. Our last meeting of the year was a great, relaxing success. Our sisterhood members bonded and we can now call ourselves "Sisters from the Hood". We had a lot of fun sipping wine, eating scrumptious desserts and telling personal anecdotes to the group. I hope that this good feeling will continue through to the fall.

I am very pleased to announce that Marilyn Teleky will be serving as my co-president. Diane Landau is our treasurer and Maris Blechner is our secretary. Robyn Rosenberg is our membership chairperson and our new member, Lisa Azo, has volunteered to be program chairperson. Marilyn Seidenfeld has again volunteered to be our Gift Shop "go to" person. Thank you all for stepping up and congratulations on your positions. Although we have an outstanding board, we believe that team work is the best approach to success and invite all of you to join us at planning meetings and general events. We have scheduled planning meetings for Wednesdays, July 15th and August 12th. Please feel free to come with ideas and plans. Very soon you will be seeing fliers for our new fund raiser called "Honey from the Heart". This involves personalized decorative jars of honey for Rosh Hashanah which can be for your own table

As we count down the final months of 5775, and we do preparatory heshbon hanefesh, spiritual accounting, we should be thinking about our own legacy. And we should judge ourselves fairly. Like Steve Jobs, we are all complicated. Like Steve Jobs, who was only 56 when he died, we are mortal, no matter how much we succeed. In his introduction, Isaacson reports that Steve Jobs came to be because Steve Jobs kept suggesting he'd be a good subject for a biography. He wanted no control over the final product, and knew full well that his entire story would be on display, warts and all. How willing are we to make such a deal with a biographer? How do we want our story to be told?

Steve Jobs wasn't easy to like or root for, at least for the first two-thirds of the book. But the reader can't help but grown more sympathetic as his life begins to wind down. May we all have the chance to author lives that travel a similar trajectory.

Wishing you a summer of inspiration, and happy reading, ered unattainable. They believe that learning & constantly questioning is what makes innovation possible. Their "Chutzpah" has attained incredible achievements.

Let me share with you just a few of the achievements that make Israel one of the greatest nations in the world...

I just learned about the "Netafim Drip Irrigation System" discovered and created in Israel. In simple terms, instead of spraying lots of water from pipes and hoses in use for irrigation, they have little holes spread across pipes that drip small amounts of water on to the land. They discovered that tiny drops are really all you need for cultivation and agriculture. This incredible irrigation system allows Israel to grow large amounts of fruits and vegetables and export them for economic growth. They have shared this system with other countries who now utilize it with great success.

I also learned about an organization in Israel called SAVE A CHILDS HEART (SACH),

Reflections From Gordon Goldman Our Ritual Director

It seems that this is my time of year for saying thank you. Last year it was for the tremendous outpouring of support and comfort following the passing of my mother, Rita Goldman z'l. This year I need to thank all of you who called, visited, emailed, made donations, prayed, texted and send third party good wishes in the days following my recent surgery. It was a tremendous boost to both my morale (and Ilene's) and, I believe, to the healing process.

I am a great believer in the connection between a person's state of mind and the welfare of his or her body. I believe that a good attitude and high morale can speed the healing process. It makes you care a little more, cooperate with the professionals a little more and in ways I certainly don't understand it affects the internal functions that are needed in the healing process. My proof is not necessarily based on repeatable double-blind random testing but I can tell you both the lay people and the doctors and nurses who have seen me are surprised at how well I look and how strong I seem. Thank you all so very much, from the bottom of my now improved heart.

On further reflection, I realize that last year and this have more in common than one might think. Both menachem avel (comforting the mourner) and bikor cholim (visiting and

Message From the V.P. of Ritual Life
Dr. Ben Solomowitz

The Ritual Committee has had numerous brain storming sessions to make services more meaningful, spiritual and accessible to all congregants.

Following on the success of two previous sessions, on Saturday, July 18, Parsha Mattote-Masei, we will be having another Break-Out Shabbat Torah Discussion. Prerequisite is to read the parsha beforehand. Our discussion will be in English in the White Chapel, while the regular Torah service is taking place in Menchel Hall. We had a very spirited discussion during our previous Break-Out Shabbats and hope to continue in that vein.

Once the High Holidays are over, we will start up the HHJC Junior Congregation. Two age groups are targeted: 6-12 years to be held monthly, under the leadership of V.P. of Life Long Learning Seth Seidman and led by Jordie Wise and a 13-17 year old minyan, where the teens themselves will take charge of leading the Services.

We also have plans for the adults, offering a more spiritual and meaningful Shabbat morning service and discussions in English.

Sabbath programs for families with younger children are also on the planning board. Both Rabbi Wise and Cantor Zim have plans for a Friday evening autumn program to welcome the Sabbath.

We are trying to bring new programs to our congregation, including instruments accompanying the Friday night service before candle lighting, if you have suggestions please let me know.

Please participate in our programs and services and invite your friends to join you. See you on Saturday, July 18 for the Break-Out Shabbat Torah Discussion.

caring for the sick) are mandated by Jewish law and have, for centuries, been part of our culture. They are also both part of human nature. I believe that caring, compassion and outreach to those who are weakened and beaten by circumstance are a part of what it means to be both a Jew and a decent human being. I believe that these behaviors stem from the same roots in the human soul or psyche that lead us to provide for the poor, donate toward aid projects for people who are affected by natural disasters or by war, to participate in activities like habitat for humanity or serving in soup kitchens.

In Parshat Kedoshim, part of the holiness code so beautifully outlined in Leviticus, we are commanded, "Do not stand by the blood of your brother". To me, in 21st century CE America, "blood" needs to be understood as suffering or distress. This means that we may not turn a blind eye or a deaf ear to anyone's suffering. We must all be kind, compassionate and caring to everyone, everywhere who is in pain. We must feel and we must act on those feelings. This community had stepped up once and again for me and I am boundlessly grateful. May we all find the strength to do the same for our community, for our brothers and sisters in Israel and for anyone and everyone who suffers unfairly here and around the world. I pray the menschlikeit and a deep-rooted sense of community will always be part of what we stand for.

Once again TODAH RABBAH and Y'YASHER KOCHACHEM

We now have a list in the office of members who will help give rides to doctor's appointments during the week and to synagogue on Saturday morning. If anyone needs help please contact the synagogue office. If anyone else is interested in signing up to help, please contact the office.

sent with their renditions of David Melech and Oseh Shalom. The Aleph through Hey students followed with rousing chorals of Yesh Tikvah and We Sing Shabbat, We Sing Shalom.

Upon conclusion of the musical interlude, Morah Janet was presented with a lovely floral bouquet, as a sign of appreciation for her volunteerism in assuring Ohr Chadash had a musical curriculum for our children.

Parents' Association President Jennifer Reich spoke of the gratitude of the families for the dedication of the teachers to their children's religious education and presented them with tokens of their esteem. Ruth Merrill added her own kudos to the staff for their diligence and commitment to Ohr Chadash.

The perfect morning concluded with a delightful collation sponsored by the Parents' Association.

Although the 5775 school year has just concluded, we are looking ahead to the fall. Our autumn semester will begin for the Aleph through Hey classes on Wednesday, September 16, 2015, from 3:45 PM – 6:15 PM, at Hollis Hills Jewish Center. For our Sunday-only four, five, and six-year olds, classes begin on Sunday, September 20th, They will meet from 9 AM until 11 AM. For our Sunday-only Mechina children, the schedule is 9 AM until 12:30 PM. The Geshet Program, which is transitioning from Wednesdays to Sundays, as per parental request, will meet from 9 AM until 12 Noon. Classes for Aleph through Hey run from 9 AM until 12:30 PM.

Our Open House is scheduled for Sunday, August 23rd, from 9 AM until Noon, at Hollis Hills Jewish Center. Keep an eye out for up-to-date information throughout the summer either by email, on Facebook, or on the Ohr Chadash website, www.ohrchadashqueens.org. Let your friends know how much your children enjoy our school and have them come with you to registration.

All our families are wished a temperate and joyful summer. See you in August.

It's that time of the year again where we look forward to vacations and enjoying sunny skies after all the white stuff we had a few months ago. We wish you all a good time if you plan to travel somewhere, have a safe trip and tell us all about it when we get together again.

We wish a happy and healthy birthday to Eleanor Rosenberg, who celebrates this event in July. We also wish a happy birthday to Rayna Martin, who has a birthday in August. Congratulations to everyone else who celebrates a special event in July and August.

Also, a speedy recovery to all who are "in recovery".

We hope to see you in July for our luncheon.

All the best to everybody

Calling All Lovers of Yarn

By the time you read this the latest shipment of yarn for our US soldiers should be in the office. We are also adding a new aspect to our crafting – preemie caps. Preemie caps are used in NICU's for babies who need a bit of extra attention at birth. The caps are less "hospital" looking (pretty yarn) and add a bit of brightness to the day for family members. We have a donation of pink yarn coming in. As always we will supply patterns. Rebecca (rebecca@cencarp.com)

"2015 World's Happiest Report"

Dear HHJC-ers,

What is the happiest place on earth, the sweetest, nicest place to be? To spend a charming weekend? A restful vacation? A care-free stop-over? Can't you guess? The answer? Switzerland!

Just think of it: Heidi land, the Alps, Lake Geneva! Sunshine and snow, curly tailed goats, velvety chocolate and smart watches that keep super-precise time! You can even get some quite splendid time-pieces, surrounded in platinum and gold, studded with diamonds and rubies. Of course, you may have to be a Saudi prince to afford one --but then, you can always just admire one on the wrist of a German skier on the slopes of St Moritz. (Naturally, you must avoid noticing a possible small swastika on the skier's upper arm as he lounges in a hot tub in the spa!)

If you are interested in solid banks with super safe vaults where you can preserve absolutely lovely works of art, jewelry and unreported bank accounts (all stolen from dead Jews murdered during the Holocaust)...with a clear conscience, Zurich is your choice location.

Yes, Switzerland is the most splendiferous place to be. Admittedly, its hard to get in. Fleeing Jewish refugees in the late 30's and 40's found the doors of entry usually sealed rather tight. Even now, the Swiss are a tad choosy when it comes to citizenship rights. They will take your money...but just try to buy a passport!

Why Switzerland? Ask the U.N. Despite a report which I discovered on the internet a while ago, which - to my total joy - cited the State of Israel as the happiest place on earth, the United Nations Sustainable Development Solutions Committee (who else!) recently came out with its own report. Therein, based on the following five variables, i.e. well-being; life-style; freedom to make life-choices; social support; and healthy life-expectations at birth, this group of "experts" selected Switzerland, followed by Iceland, Denmark, Norway and Canada as the top five happiest locations on our otherwise troubled planet. The United States, which pays the biggest slice of U.N. bills and accounts, including those of this august committee, came in 15th!

Well, wherever you are this summer - Hollis Hills, Boca, Los Angeles, Sedona, Seattle, Montauk, Martha's Vineyard- remember this: our blessed country, America, is the one place on earth (as well as little postage-stamp size Israel!) which officially welcomes the "wretched refuse of the world yearning to be free". We leave a light on at the front door. Check out the very tall lady standing in New York harbor!

Kayitz shel briyut, simcha, shalvah v'shalom – Have a happy. Healthy and peaceful summer!

Rabbi Dr. H. Joseph and Chana Simckes.

based in Holon, Israel. They provide urgent pediatric heart surgery and follow up care (free of charge) for poor children from third world countries. It does not matter to them the race, creed, color, religion or nationality of the children. They just SAVE LIVES. Also, after the disastrous earthquakes and Tsunami's that took place in Haiti and Japan, Israeli missions were some of the first to be there to help.

Israeli's strongly believe in family, roots and education and they truly overcome adversity! They believe in MITZVOT, TZEDAKA and TIKKUN OLAM. We are a unique people and Israel is a unique nation! I am sure my grandson Ryan will come back from Israel glowing with pride just as my other grandsons did when they returned from our Holy Land.

I am now planning the new music programs for next year. I will let you know the dates soon.

Have a wonderful summer. Stay Cool, stay hydrated and stay healthy!

See you in Shul.

Cantorially always,
Cantor Sol Zim

Community Run/Walk By Dr. Ben Solomowitz

On Sunday, June 14, 2015 a community event was held in our neighborhood. The 14th Annual L'Chaim 5K Run/Walk for Israel was held to raise consciousness and funds for the assistance of Israeli terror victims. Raffles were sold and local vendors set-up tables in the lobby of the Young Israel of Jamaica Estates which hosted the event. Hollis Hills Jewish Center was one of the sponsors of this event.

HHJC members who participated were the Ludwig Family (Alexis, Richard and their children), the Cohen Family (Neil, Beth and their children), Eli Wise, Brian Miller, and Ben Solomowitz.

A total of 261 runners/walkers were registered with many others joining to cheer them on and participate in the festivities. The oldest runner/walker was 94 years old and completed the course in 35 minutes.

HHJC was very well represented at the awards ceremony. Alexis Ludwig came in first in her age category. Brian Miller received the second place trophy in his age group. Ben Solomowitz came in third place in his age category.

Free ice cream at the end of the race of chocolate, vanilla and "blue" flavors were available to all.
